

SEND 570 MORE TO CAMP Second Contingent Leaves in Five-Day Movement to South Carolina

NEARBY TOWNS GIVE 101 Bristol, Ridley Park and Chester Quotas Go on Train With Philadelphians

The second contingent of selected men to depart in the big five-day draft movement to depart from this city in the big five-day draft movement now under way turned their backs on civil life this morning and boarded a troop train at North Philadelphia for Camp Wadsworth, South Carolina.

Thousands of friends and relatives of the National Army warriors gathered about the station to wish them goodspeed on their mission for democracy.

The contingent of selected men, numbering 570, is made up from registrants of eight local boards in the northern section of the city. They assembled shortly after 8 o'clock this morning at the station to entrain for camp.

Men from Nearby Towns Join In addition to the contingent from Philadelphia the troop train carried increments from Bristol, Ridley Park and Chester. The first two groups entrained at their respective home terminals and were merged with the Philadelphians at North Philadelphia, while the Chester men boarded the train on its journey south.

Bristol's quota comprised fifteen men; Ridley Park furnished twenty-nine men; and Chester provided fifty-seven, making a total of 101 to join the 570 from this city.

A colorful parade in honor of the selected men leaving for the camp from Local Boards 44 and 45 formed at the Germantown avenue and Lycoming street police station. In line were the North Philadelphia Business Men's Association, the North Philadelphia Branch of the Emergency Aid, the Kynett Auxiliary of the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, a band and a detail of mounted police.

Comfort kits, cigars and a luncheon were provided for the boys by the various organizations that marched with them down Germantown avenue, south on Broad street to North Philadelphia station.

Finals for Many Boards Many of the boards furnishing men in the five-day movement are giving to the army their final increment of men in Class I from the first draft, having exhausted their number of eligibles. They will now turn to the men who registered June 5 this year, to be transferred to different sections of the city since the murder of Policeman Epney on primary election day last September.

Among the policemen summoned by the District Attorney's office as witnesses in the case are: John Altmeyer, Christian Hartison, Louis Baker, Charles Carraway, James C. Coulter, Benjamin H. Gorman, Dinesaw, William Keis, Oden F. Eisinger, John J. Fitch, David Fitzgerald, John P. Friehorn, George E. Grover, Edward J. H. Jones, Thomas F. Lee, John J. McGarrity, Thomas Nihil, Frank P. Quinn, George J. Ryan, George J. Sweney, John W. Shields, Charles Sontag, William J. Taylor, and George Whitworth.

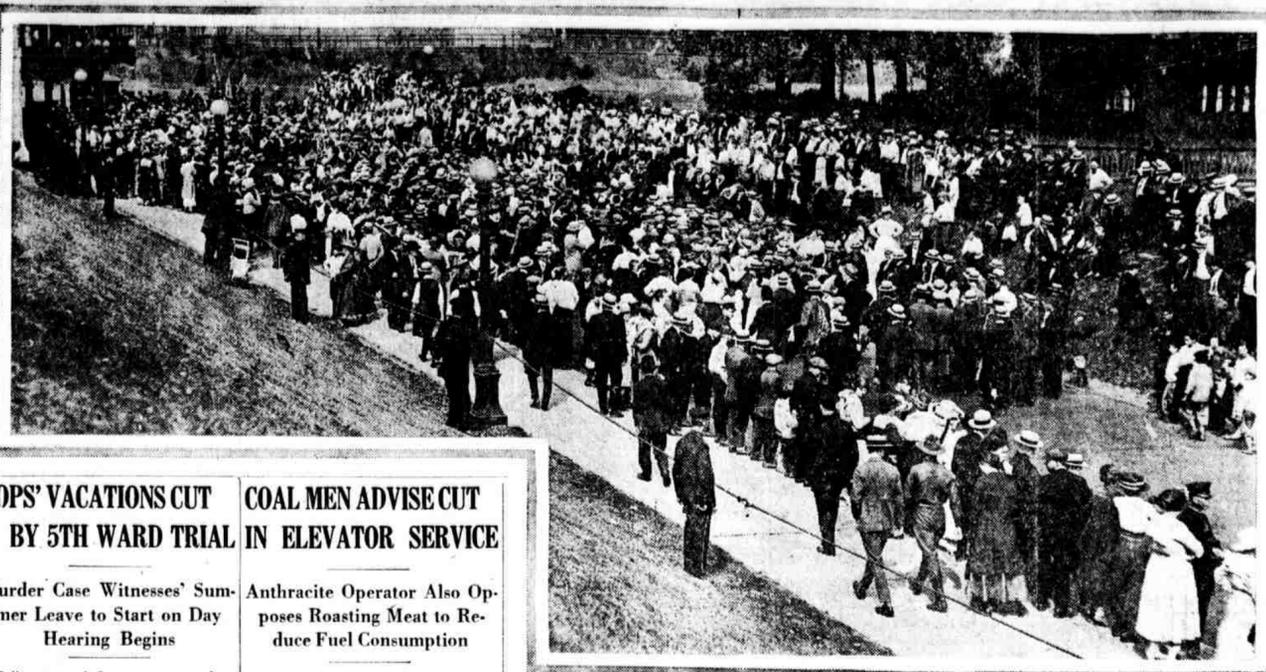

Fifteen men who have been summoned as witnesses to take their vacation during the time set for the trial, will receive their salaries from the city and in addition will get witness fees from the county. Many of the men summoned testified at the trial of "Butch" Mastella and Costello, two of the gunmen who were convicted for complicity in the murder of Policeman Epney.

Police men and firemen summoned as witnesses in the Fifth Ward murder case face the prospect of spending the greater part of their annual vacation in the West Chester Court House. The trial is scheduled to begin at West Chester on Monday, July 16, and the policemen and firemen summoned as witnesses in the case have been notified their vacations start on the same date.

Each summer the policemen and firemen get two weeks' leave of absence with pay. This summer those who testify at the murder trial will not be able to spend the time with their families at the seashore or in the country, but will spend it in court.

COAL MEN ADVISE CUT IN ELEVATOR SERVICE

Elimination of the gas lighters in cigar stores and of the practice of roasting meats in the home are recommended as coal conservation moves by the anthracite operators' committee, which proposed seven regulations covering those points.

A decrease in the consumption of electricity for illuminating signs of all kinds during hours of the day when buildings are also urged by the committee.

Officials of the Department of Health, in an effort to prevent a repetition of last winter's coal shortage at Blockley, are storing thousands of tons of fuel on the lawns. Already 7000 tons, half enough to operate the boilers and provide for other needs between August 1 and April 1, have been stored on the lawn. The University of Pennsylvania has also made preparations for storage coal on its lawn.

The anthracite operators' committee proposed regulations follow: First, Extinguish gas and gas lights on city streets during hours of the day when a little later than dusk. Much electric light, gas and heat is daily wasted in big buildings and by ferris wheels, street cars, trains and street advertising. Cigar stores and gas lighters should be discontinued during the day.

Second, Power elevators should run in big buildings and less illumination therein during daylight hours.

Third, Decrease the consumption of coal for illuminating signs of all kinds during hours of the day when buildings are also urged by the committee.

Fourth, A public understanding of the fact that the coal shortage is a national one, and not a local one, should be maintained.

Fifth, Coal is used in summer, this would mean a big saving in fuel for heat for the winter.

Sixth, A concentrated and patriotic effort on the part of the public to realize the varying shades of coal is urged.

Seventh, A concentrated and patriotic effort on the part of the public to realize the varying shades of coal is urged.

J. ELVIN JACKSON FALLS DEAD IN CAR

Former Architect Expires While on Way to Midvale Plant at Edgelyne

J. Elvin Jackson, Hulmeville, Pa., a former Philadelphia architect, with offices at 727 Walnut street, today dropped dead in a Woodland avenue trolley car, while on his way to the Midvale Steel and Ordnance plant, Edgelyne.

Letters and personal cards, with an application blank for work at the steel plant, gave the police clues to the identity of the dead man.

Mr. Jackson was seen to fall back in his seat in the car, and his head dropped on his breast as if he were ill. B. S. Borland, a passenger on the car, notified the conductor, and when the car reached Sixty-sixth street and Woodland avenue, station efforts were made to arouse Mr. Jackson, but he could not be awakened.

Police were called. The body was taken to the University Hospital and formally pronounced dead. Mr. Jackson's application for employment in the steel plant gave himself as his last employer, and the reason for leaving the architectural business was that he no longer could obtain building materials.

WARD FANCED ROSES

Throughout America and Europe Admiral's Gardens Known

Reson, L. J. July 6.—Rear Admiral Aaron Ward, U. S. Navy, who died yesterday, spent virtually all his time since retirement in the cultivation of roses at his place here.

His garden was known throughout this country and Europe. He kept a log of his roses, and the date of planting each rose bush, and the date of its fruiting for each rose bush and the date of its fruiting.

He wrote a little book called "One Year with the Rose Garden," which he gave to the American Association of Gardeners, of which he was a member. The book is now being published by the American Association of Gardeners.

10,000-TON SHIP A DAY NOW

Schwab Says Yards Are Turning Out Vessels at That Speed

San Francisco, July 6.—The "Emergency Fleet Corporation has given us the equivalent of one 10,000-ton ship for each day of the last sixty days, and 500,000 tons deadweight in the last two months," said Charles M. Schwab, director general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, at a luncheon here today.

Mr. Schwab said the nation had no greater stimulus in its great undertaking than that of the present. He declared against any sort of "cupidity criticism" and said that although fame may come to some persons because of their prominence, the real honor in shipbuilding should go to the workmen who actually turn out the ships.

Mr. Schwab drove the first rivet in a big steel tanker at the Moore shipbuilding plant in Oakland.

THINK WOMAN AIDED

Police Seek Well-Dressed Pair for Robbery of Showcase in Hotel

A well-dressed man and woman, who promanaged the corridor of the Bellevue-Stratford for several nights, are believed to be responsible for the theft of jewelry valued at $3500, which were taken from a showcase of J. E. Caldwell & Co.'s branch store in the hotel.

The case was in the Walnut street entrance, which is frequented by few guests at night. The police believe the woman acted as a lookout while the man removed the gems. A small piece of molding was taken from the bottom of the case and the glass lifted just enough to permit reaching in through the aperture.

It is evident, the police say, that the thieves were experienced at this line of work, as the job showed considerable finesse.

Among the pieces taken was a burlap with seventy-six diamonds and sixteen sapphires set in platinum, a flexible bracelet set with twenty-six diamonds and twenty-six onyx stones, a gold wristlet with three diamonds, a diamond and sapphire vanity case.

After the adoption of khaki as the Marine Corps standard dress, there were many because a uniform shade of khaki was not procurable.

The present war and the attention the conflict has brought to the art of camouflage, has led to the adoption of a khaki shade of uniform shade of khaki.

It is now found that a body of marines in the field, wearing a uniform shade of khaki, is far less easily observed than a like body dressed in a uniform shade of khaki.

The darker and more varied shades of khaki, which are used in the field, are far less easily observed than a like body dressed in a uniform shade of khaki.

Estimating the number of men in a unit this cloth was found to be extremely valuable. The officers who were formerly in the field, are now in the field, and are now in the field.

E. TUCK FRENCH TO WORK

Millionaire Who Married Phone Girl Misses Allowances

Boston, July 6.—Edward Tuck French, heir to millions, will abandon society after a month's vacation in Manchester, N. H., where Mrs. French was formerly a telephone operator, the couple will live the simple life.

In his suite at the Copely-Plaza he called his one-time Newport companions "insincere and superficial." He said he "did not care to be a social parasite."

Mr. French was charged at the loss of his weekly check from home, but he refused to attend a meeting in a philosophical way.

"You know, it is rather inconvenient to be without funds," he said, "and to have to get along with a good-sized weekly check."

The bridegroom said he is going to look for a job. He wants to be a newspaper reporter and will seek a position at the Boston Herald.

"Tot" and I are just going to take it easy up there in her apartment," said Mr. French. "We can manage to get along until I get a job. I will not let 'Tot' go to work again."

SHIELDS BOY WHO SHOT HIM

Harry Eberhardt Dies, Maintaining Secret of Fatal Wound

Without divulging the name of a companion who is alleged to have shot him, Harry Eberhardt, sixteen years old, 1810 North Twenty-second street, died at the Northwestern General Hospital today.

He was shot in the abdomen during a quarrel of July celebration, and is the first to die as the result of Philadelphia's 1918 observance of the day.

According to the police, the shooting was accidental. This much the boy victim told them after being removed to the hospital, but though every effort was made to obtain the name of his companion, the boy maintained strict silence. It was reported at the hospital, that the police have been making an investigation since the shooting occurred, but today they were not near a solution of the mystery.

VETERAN OF FIRST U. S. BATTLE IS WOUNDED

Lieutenant MacLaughlin Is Convalescent at Cape May Army Hospital

Cape May, N. J., July 6.—Among the convalescent wounded from the battlefields of France now at the Army Hospital No. 111 here is Lieutenant MacLaughlin, who entered military service from his home at Little Rock, Ark., and who was with the first American Expeditionary Force to go across the Atlantic. He was in the trenches in France when the first American soldiers were killed near the village of Bathelmont, in the province of Lorraine.

These three men who lost their lives November 3, 1917, were Corporal James R. Gresham, of Evansville, Ind., Private Private Merle H. Hart, of Pittsburgh, and Corporal Gresham fell in the arms of Lieutenant MacLaughlin and to him were his last words mumbled.

In the province of Lorraine, the soldiers of various branches of the army are 300 convalescent patients, some suffering from the effects of being gassed and others from wounds. Those of the patients who are able to do so are being given light garden work on a farm which has been established about five miles from the hospital under the direction of Colonel Louis Brechin, the commandant.

Colonel Brechin is a native of Pennsylvania and was appointed from that State assistant surgeon June 6, 1878, and five years later was made captain, and in November, 1884, was promoted to major, and July 1, 1905, was made lieutenant colonel, and in 1912, was promoted to colonel. He was graduated from the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania in 1878. He was retired from the army on May 25, 1917, and because of the war was recalled to the service in December to take charge of the hospital at Cape May.

OIL FRAUD IS UNCOVERED

Scores of Small Investors at Shore Caught, Police Say

Atlantic City, July 6.—Scores of small investors have been lured out of amounts ranging from $200 to $1000 into the purchase of oil lands in Oklahoma, according to advices received here in the last few days.

Officers of a "chainmail" real estate corporation, who arrived at the shore in a special car here in the last few days, advertised their plans to buy from the Government Oklahoma lands assessed at from $1.50 to $3.50 an acre, and to sell to investors in 1916 had netted local investors handsome profits, and when the project was abandoned, the investors were to take advantage of the alleged bargain.

Federal agents have been in the city for some time, interviewing the investors in an effort to discover the total amount obtained here. In some instances the investors have been summoned as witnesses to appear against the corporation, which is the real estate company. It is alleged that the corporation has been operating in Philadelphia for many years, having fifteen of which he resided at 400 Chestnut avenue. His industrial career began at Boston, when he was sixteen years of age; an organ pupil of Eugene Whaley, he was later a student of the Emory, graduating from the New England Conservatory of Music with honors.

While in Boston, he was musical director for many of the prominent artists. After this, he spent several years of study in Italy, and then in London, where he lived in concert with Miss Melba, and was president of the King and Queen, who complimented him highly.

His teaching of singing has developed many of the well-known singers of the present day.
